

"These really are the worst joysticks ever."

WHAT ARE YOU SAYING?

LETTER OF THE MONTH

GO FISH

While most of your readers take your magazine to new heights, I decided to take it to new lows—very low, in fact. One hundred thirty feet underwater while I was scuba-diving in Truk Lagoon, to be exact. Here I am with a Maxim in front of a bombed-out Japanese ship from WWII. Much like myself, I had to wrap it up when going that deep and wet in a strange place. Who says men are shallow?

Travis Cohen
Los Angeles, CA

Much like yourself, did it also shrivel up like a Shrinky Dink?

"Down here, no one wedgies me!"

Bacon Bits

Your article about the power of bacon ["Bacon Goods," August] was awesome. I've been putting bacon on everything from ice cream to cereal for years. I love the stuff. Finally, someone had the common sense to go and tell the whole world how much better a little bacon can make something. My goal is to eventually get my wife to welcome bacon into the bedroom. Got any advice about how I can convince her to let more than one pig get involved in our sex life?

C. Crabtree
Via e-mail

Maybe you should ask that other guy she's undoubtedly sleeping with, Boss Hogg.

Offensive Line, Man

Your magazine always claims to be behind the troops and behind the U.S., but when you publish captions like "There's gotta be an easier way to pay for college," like you did in your August issue, you take away from the entire concept and history of the U.S. military. People fail to realize that the military is a volunteer force, to protect people like you. In the military, college money is great, but the real reasons for joining are pride, honor, and defending your country.

Appreciative Citizen
Via e-mail

We're sorry for offending you, Mr. Citizen. No one supports the troops more than we do. We're just jealous because we flunked out of kindergarten.

Stone Cold

I was reading the August issue, and the pictures of Nicky Hilton were so smoking hot that I asked my fiancée to get up and get me something to drink. She got an ice-cold glass of water... and poured it right on me and my magazine and told me to "cool off." I said she has to buy me another issue. Was I too harsh?

Andrew Zellner
Galion, OH

At least she didn't hand you a bug zapper first. Our eyebrows still haven't resurfaced.

Pinko Slip

What's the deal with the "Screwed Heroes" article by Sean Cunningham in your July issue? I can't believe he was able to subtly sympathize with commies and turn the facts into some left-wing shit. I know he'd deny it, but anyone who doesn't condemn communism is a

IT'S YOURS!

WRITE IN AND WIN

Enjoy this classy Maxim bar set, on us, if your scribble was published. E-mail us at editors@maximmag.com to collect.

